DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 6-9 are allowed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koyanagi et al in view of the Japanese '547 publication. Koyanagi et al discloses the basic apparatus without a control of the feed means which may provide for uneven crushing. The Japanese publication solves this problem by disclosing similar apparatus including the control of the feeder based on a load judging means. In order to properly feed material, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Koyanagi et al by providing a feed controller based on load judgment, taught to be desirable by the Japanese publication.

Claims 3,4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koyanagi et al in view of the Japanese '547 publication as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of the Japanese '407 publication. The basic patent uses a single motor which is limiting in various ways. The Japanese '407 publication solves this problem by disclosing similar apparatus including the use of two motors. In order to render the apparatus more versatile, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the basic apparatus by providing two motors, taught to be desirable by the Japanese '407 publication.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koyanagi et al in view of the Japanese '547 publication as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of the Japanese '701 publication. The basic combination does not provide for a motor that changes capacity by self pressure which results in inherent inefficiency. The Japanese '701 publication solves this problem by disclosing similar apparatus including the use of a motor that changes capacity by self pressure. In order to provide for apparatus efficiency, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify the basic apparatus by using a motor that changes through self pressure, taught to be desirable by the Japanese '701 publication.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 6/17/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The amendments to the claims appear to be functional statements only i.e. the apparatus of the various prior art combinations can perform these functions if so desired. If this is incorrect, applicant should specifically point out the apparatus that cannot perform the desired function.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Art Unit: 3725

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
